

Publication Agreement for NIH Pragmatic Trials Collaboratory Living Textbook

Thank you for your contribution to the NIH Pragmatic Trials Collaboratory's Rethinking Clinical Trials®: A Living Textbook of Pragmatic Clinical Trials (the "Living Textbook"). As a condition of acceptance and publication, the Contributor agrees to the following:

- All material that the Contributor creates for the Living Textbook, including text, artwork, slides, video, or other content, will be freely available without restriction, and the Contributor agrees to release (dedicate) their work to the public domain.
- All material created for the Living Textbook may be subject to editing and adaptation, including removal of outdated material or the addition or modification of content by other content contributors or staff members, who may be added as named contributors.¹
 - The Contributor will be offered the opportunity to participate in subsequent content revisions. Those who decline to participate in subsequent revisions will remain listed as contributors for the relevant version of the content.
 - The Contributor will be notified of any substantive changes to the content and will be allowed the opportunity to review and comment on the changes.
 - A record of content revisions and the contributors involved will be maintained by NIH Collaboratory staff and posted publicly along with the content.
 - Disputes related to authorship or content revisions will be mediated by the NIH Collaboratory's Publications Committee or Executive Committee.
- The Contributor guarantees that any material that he or she contributes to the Living Textbook contains no content that can be construed as libelous or as infringing upon the copyright of any other party. In the event that the content incorporates material adapted from other parties, the Contributor will be responsible for securing permission to reuse or adapt any material subject to copyright.

Contributor signature	Date
Print full name
E-mail	Phone

¹ Please see contributorship definitions in the Living Textbook Copyright Policy.